

source text

/Reference manual/Z-related commands/Miscellaneous commands

The source text command generates notation that could have been used to mark-up the inspected formula—not the actual mark-up from the source file. It is applicable to most selections. It is useful both for help in finding out how to mark-up something similar, and for recycling useful results back into the specification document.

See also the save source command.

IT 10-Oct-1997